Approaching Marriage.
We are in receipt of the following. Mr. Cuson and his chosen bride are well known and beloved in Palestine: Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carson desire the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Mary Alice, to Mr. George Bennett Cuson, on the evening of Wednesday, June fifteenth, nineteen hundred and ten, at nine o'clock, Grace Methodist church, Palestine, Texas.
Reception at home of bride's parents.

Complimentary Picnic.
Mrs. D. M. Hodges complimented her little daughter, Eloise, with a beautiful all day picnic and luncheon Saturday at Howard Creek. About thirty friends of the honoree were guests. The day was delightfully passed in the shady woods, and bathing in the beautiful clear water was an added joy. Mrs. Hodges was assisted in entertaining the children by Mrs. J. E. Davenport.

Afternoon Party.
Miss Lovey Hassell entertained a few friends of her school room Saturday afternoon. A happy afternoon was passed in pretty games, ending in a delightful luncheon.

Reunion Luncheon.
Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Trice's suburban home was the scene of a pretty event last Sunday, the occasion being is absolutely neutral. It does not partake of the taste of the foods which are prepared with it. When strained, it can be poured back into the original can, and used over and over again, without the possibility of imparting the slightest flavor. The use therefore of the eve of the departure of the Misses Trice for Chicago, where they go to take a conservatory course in music. It was a sweet tribute to the "Bungalow Girls"—calling them once again together for a happy reunion. Last summer a house party was entertained at the Trice home for one week. A new barn furnished for the week for the girls' pleasure was dubbed "The Bungalow," and the happenings of that happy week were put in rhyme by the girls, sketched by Miss Olive Trice and published by Miss Mary Dunlop, one of the party. Since they have been known as the "Bungalow Girls," and they like the name, because it brings to mind so many happy hours of the eventful week. The occasion Sunday was a most happy one. The pretty home 'neath the large oak trees is an ideal place for happy times. Cut flowers and ferns were prettily arranged in the different apartments. The decorations of the dining table were artistic and beautiful. A miniature engine and train, on a real little track, going through mountains and tunnels, suggested the journey of the Misses Trice. The place cards were little suit cases tied in red and white ribbons, bearing pretty quotations from the Bungalow Book. These were pretty souvenirs. The luncheon was elaborate and exquisitely served. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Trice, Misses Olive and Anna Trice, the honorees, Misses Janie Garland, Ethel Burton, Mary Dunlop, Maudie Frank Bonds, Bernice Barker, Lanita Vandiver, Messrs. Tracy Word, Harry Jander, Fred Barker, Wilhite and Henson. The afternoon was passed in conversation, music and song. The return trip home was interesting. Sketches of "The Bungalow," bearing the names and quotations from the book, told where each guest was to sit. The drive home ended the happy day, which will never be forgotten by all who shared it together.

Will Entertain.
The following pretty invitations are out for Friday afternoon:
Mrs. Charles Eugene Dobbs, at home, Friday afternoon, June the tenth, nineteen hundred and ten, four o'clock, Mrs. Edwin Brasher Doran. Rook. Please reply.

Sewing Club.
Mrs. Robt. Abernathy entertained the Sewing Club yesterday afternoon. After the sewing hour luncheon was served.

Beardsley Children Entertain.
One of the delightful events for the younger set was the hay ride Friday evening given by little Caperton and Wilson Beardsley, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Beardsley, Mr. and Mrs. James McCane, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Clint, Mrs. Beville, Miss Moore and Mrs. J. E. Foster.
The little folks gathered at the home of the host and hostess at 6:30. After the drawing contest for the favors, which were beautiful creations in fancy hats for the girls, horns, whistles and grotesque caps for the boys, fashioned by the deft fingers of Mrs. Beardsley and Miss Moore, all adorned themselves and started for the ride through the principal streets, down the shell road to the place of destination, Crystal Springs Park, followed closely by a mysterious automobile, which passed on the way. Arriving at the park, the guests found a daintily appointed table laden with good things that specially delight the child, including oh, so many bottles of soda pop (children's delight). A toast to the soda pop man, appetites were soon appeased. A few hours of music, dancing and games, and the little guests were placed in safety at home, not too sleepy to declare it the best time of their life.—From Sunday's Houston Post.

The Beardsley children are well known here, having spent their first years among us.

Mrs. E. B. Frank (nee Miss Claire Myers) of San Antonio is visiting her loved ones at Clairmont. She is accompanied by her niece, Miss Eleanor Harris, of Austin.

Mrs. W. P. Berry and son, Eulan, and Miss Belle Dechard of Rusk are guests of Mesdames H. E. Riddle and Mage Eastland, on North Jackson street.

Mrs. R. M. Goldstein, mother of Mrs. H. Horwitz, left Sunday morning for New York, to visit for the summer with her daughter, Mrs. R. C. Trier.

Mesdames Call and Tait, who are visiting the Buck home on Royall street, are moving from their old home in Smithville to Amarillo, Texas. They have been the honorees of several very charming social affairs before leaving their old home. Among them was a reception given by their social club, where a charming surprise in the shape of a linen shower, when dozens and scores of dainty gifts, testimonials of love from the friends left behind, were bestowed. At a similar function given in their honor by their music club, handsome busts of Beethoven and Mozart were presented.

How to Kill Nut Grass.
The only way I know to kill nut grass is not to let it show a leaf above ground. This means constant cleaning off, for it will be up next day, but if constantly prevented from making green leaves the roots will die. Nut grass spreads more from seed than from the roots, and being neglected late in the season, it fills the soil with seed, and nothing but constant vigilance will eradicate it. I have just made a garden here from a piece of land that is full of it, and I am going to do just what I advise; clean up every shoot every day. Nothing short of this will answer. Geese penned on the spots will keep it down, it is said, but I have never tried them.—W. F. Massey, in Starkville (Miss.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.
